Landfill operator clears the air on dump application

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

Operators of the landfill on Didsbury's outskirts tried to clear the air with residents last week about their pending application to increase the amount of garbage that can be landfilled there annually.

The Mountain View Regional Waste Commission held a public meeting last Wednesday night at the Didsbury Memorial Complex. The meeting was to hear the public's questions and concerns regarding the commission's application to the province to allow for more than 10,000 metric tonnes of garbage to be landfilled a year at the Class 2 landfill site.

Members of the commission, a representative from Tagish Engineering and from Parkland Geotechnical consulting Ltd. were in attendance to discuss the licensing application and the current state of the site.

"Once we reach that threshold of 10,000 tonnes, we have to expand," explained commission chair and Mountain View County reeve Al Kemmere. "We are here to hear your concerns."

Approximately 30 residents attended the meeting - almost all being residents close to the site - some of whom were vocal about how they have been affected since the site reopened.

A number of residents voiced their concerns and anger regarding the number of ravens and seagulls that had accumulated in the area. One resident said that although the commission had looked into a sonic 'boom box' to divert the birds, they had now ended up by his property.

Ken Anderson from Didsbury's Ag Society stated their grounds keep "getting decorated by the white bags," referring to the white plastic shopping bags that fly off the landfill site with the wind. He explained ag society volunteers were taking part in a 'clean up party' because they were constantly cleaning up garbage that was coming from the waste site.

"When the land was bought, the site was closed and there were no plans for it to be reopened," said Anderson adding the ag society arena was also not being used very often because of the landfill site.

Kivell strongly urged those in attendance that if they were having problems with the bags or garbage coming into their area from the site that he would ensure it was taken care of.

"We never want you to be in put in a position where you have to pay or get volunteers to clean up - we will do it for you," Kivell said.

Questions also arose regarding the water testing on the site. Mark Brotherton from Parkland Geotechnical Consulting stated testing was done twice a year. When pointed out by a resident that if the water ended up being contaminated between testing it would take six months before the contamination would be found, Brotherton simply responded with a yes. Residents also requested if they could get copies of the water test results. Kivell stated it would be up for discussion with the commission but also pointed out it would be difficult to understand if you did not have an engineering background.

Mary Jane Harper, a member of the commission, stated they hoped to stretch out the life of the landfill for longer than expected. She said they hoped to do this by diverting recyclables from the landfill. Kemmere noted with the current economic situation recyclables were a tough thing to deal with. "We almost have to pay to get rid of it."

But Kivell stated they had taken in 6,600 metric tonnes of recyclables this year versus the 4,500 metric tonnes from last year. "(We're) well ahead of the pace."

Members from Alberta Environment were also on hand to hear what the public had to say. They did not present anything to those in attendance but stated that a decision had not been made with regards to the commission's application and they were there to hear the position from each side.

Landfill

Clem Kuelker, another Didsbury resident did not come to the meeting to say anything negative. "I did not come to complain," he said adding he was fairly surprised by what others had had to say. He stated he had been involved in the early stages of the site when it reopened and recalled a statement being made that the waste site would be a good neighbour. "It is money that is probably preventing the commission to be good neighbours."

Kuelker noted that being a resident of Didsbury he did not see any white bags flying in town or any ravens or seagulls flying above but acknowledged that was because they were not as close to the site as others. "In general, the system works very well."

This prompted another vocal resident to state the many troubles she and her family had encountered with the ravens, which she referred to as "Alberta's vultures." Another resident pointed out how some people were taking the back road around the landfill after hours and dumping garbage into the ditches.

Another main concern brought was with this licensing being approved if it would expand the site out to more land. It was emphasized that it would not expand but just increase the amount the site could take in to over 10,000 tonnes.

Though it was a night where the commission was faced with a number of unhappy residents Kivell acknowledged the problems and also thanked them for coming out. "It's best to talk face to face," he said. He added he had taken note of the problems and complaint made and said they would work to try to improve. "We will do better."

Another area resident inquired about what would happen if the commission was going to be changed into a for profit corporation. Kemmere, also part of the MAP committee, stated the committee was looking into the most efficient structure for the commissions. "It's in the interest of doing what's best for the taxpayers," he said emphasizing that nothing had been committed yet as to what was going to be happening. He also stated that for profit or not for profit, the site would only collect waste from within the county and would not expand to accept waste from other cities or towns.

Kemmere also pointed to population growth in the county saying with growth came higher tonnage and that looking at other structures for the commission could be helpful. "How do you know your model is the best if you don't compare it to other models."

CRIME WATCH

BY MARK LAYCOCK
For the Review

Pursuit suspect apprehended

An Edmonton man is facing 10 criminal code charges after fleeing from Didsbury RCMP on June 15 on the QEII. Mahamed Abdulle Omer, 22, appeared in Didsbury Provincial Court yesterday for six firearm offences, two offences for impaired operation of a vehicle, fleeing from police, and breach of conditions of a prior offence.

At approximately 7 a.m., RCMP received a complaint of an erratic driver heading northbound on the QEII. Police located the silver Dodge Avenger and pulled the vehicle over near the Didsbury overpass.

After the officer acquired the man's insurance and registration information the man took off. The pursuit continued for 17 kilometres at highway speeds until the man pulled the vehicle over near the Olds overpass and was arrested.

Officers from the Olds detachment were dispatched to the pursuit.

After searching the vehicle police found a loaded handgun below the driver's side seat within reach of the driver.

Wallet stolen

A wallet was stolen from a Dodge Caravan on Hammond Street in Carstairs on June 14 between 12:30 a.m. and 10 a.m.

Multiple mischief complaints

Didsbury was the setting for a night of mischief on June 13.

Solar powered lights on 16 Ave., 12 Ave., and 22 St. were pulled out and broken. Meanwhile, at least three vehicles on 24 Ave. between 20 and 21 St. were egged.

That same night a flowerpot in front of the Value Drug Mart store was broken.

Police believe all the incidents are connected.

"We want to encourage members of the public to report any suspicious activity they observe or hear over night," says Sgt. Jeff Jacobson.

Vehicle damaged

A black Chevy Cavalier was keyed from front to back on Bellerose Drive in Didsbury. The incident occurred between 1 a.m. and 9 p.m. on June 14.

Anyone with information about any of the above incidents is asked to contact Didsbury RCMP at 403-335-3382 or Central Alberta Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477.

GRAND CHAMPION RACE - Kelli Knezeich, Nick Hougestol, Amber Hougestol and Dawson Courtoreille set out in the final race of Saturday's Soap Box Derby.

Annual Soap Box Derby hits the road

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

The Didsbury Lions Club held its eighth annual soap-box derby over the week-end. The Lions blocked off part of Hwy. 582 on Saturday morning for the races so participants and onlookers could enjoy the races safely.

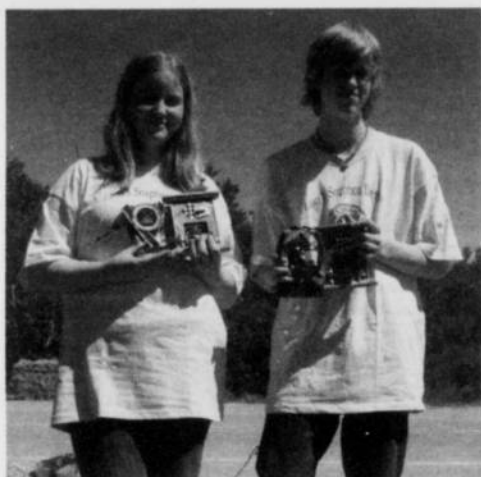

Didsbury Lions Club president Alan Gingrich said the derby was started in 2001 for something for children and families to enjoy.

"We were just looking for something for young people and families to do and we felt Father's Day week-end was the perfect week-end."

He noted there was good weather for this year's event as opposed to previous years when, at times, the derby had been postponed and even cancelled because of the weather.

He acknowledged the lower turnout of 14 registrants versus the 26 last year was due to the lack of advertising they did this year, and hoped next year the turnout would be higher.

Gingrich said the derby is not a fundraiser but rather simply an event for families to enjoy and participate in.

"We break even - the only thing that may make a little money is our concession but again, it's breaking even."

Excited participants anxiously awaited their turn in their allotted heats and in the end a brother and sister duo won the grand championships awards. Fourteen-year-old Nick Hougestol won the Adults Grand Champion award and sister

Amber Hougestol took the Junior's Grand Champion award.

The age range of contestants was between eight and 14 years and the Lions offered kits for sale for those who may not have a soapbox to participate with.

Gingrich said the derby is held every year on Father's Day weekend so those interested in taking part will know when to prepare.

Commentary Health-care battle reaching fever pitch

DAN SINGLETON

Battles over how health care should be run and funded are nothing new in Alberta – yet the current struggle between the Stelmach Tories on one hand and health-care workers and their supporters on the other has now reached a level of seldom seen intensity.

With health care being the most expensive government-funded service in the province, taking up at least 40 per cent of total spending this year, the stakes in the fight are nothing less than the health and welfare of virtually every Albertan.

Premier Stelmach and his ministers have been saying for months that their overall plan is to ensure the health system functions in a timely and affordable fashion.

While government ministers have acknowledged that some changes are on the way, the general message coming from government MLAs is that things are working well and will continue to do so.

Not surprisingly the opposition Liberals and NDP say the Tories are, in fact, doing a downright lousy job. They cite long waiting times and possible downgrades of hospitals as proof things aren't as they should be.

For its part, the United Nurses of Alberta says there is a critical shortage of registered nurses in Alberta, putting extreme pressure on existing staff and creating dangerous situations as far as patient safety is concerned.

Physicians in many communities, including in West Central Alberta, say the staffing shortages are being exasperated by uncertainty surrounding the future of rural hospitals.

Now the Friends of the Medicare (FOM) advocacy group, which says it is not affiliated with any political party or professional organization or union, has launched a campaign aimed directly at the policies and plans of the Stelmach government.

"More health cuts inflict real damage to the health and security of the population," says Friends executive director David Eggen. "Mr. Stelmach would be wise not to underestimate how much Albertans understand the value of their public health system, and how hard they are willing to fight for it."

FOM says examples of the health system being undermined by the Stelmach Tories include "downloading of costs of health care onto seniors and their families", "cancellation and postponements of surgeries", "proliferation of private health facilities", "hiring and budget freezes" and "delisting of medically necessary services."

The Friends hope that public pressure on individual Conservative MLAs will result in the government reevaluating its plans. It remains to be seen what, if any, impact this latest campaign will have.

Yet judging from the many previous fights over health care in Alberta, does anyone really expect the majority of residents to make the Tories pay for their health policies come voting day?

Letters to the editor

Not the small town I envisioned

The Town of Didsbury is building a 40-plus seniors complex plus who knows how many new houses.

Two members of Mountain View County voted for a 300 site camp ground with showers and laundry facilities and there was some talk about a mini-mall and a hotel.

With our sewage lagoon at its max and we've been on water rations from day one of spring, my question is "where are these sites going to get their water from and where is their sewage going?"

As a taxpayer (Didsbury being one of the highest in Mountain View County) I believe I have a right to full, uninterrupted services before any new residents take root.

I am told that the reason our taxes are higher in Didsbury is because we don't have the commercial base that other towns have. So why does council kick out some that were here (Steel Works now in Olds)?

They're pretty picky about who or what they let in too!!! (after dealing with one local outfit I find that hilarious).

Sounding to me like there's money talkin' here – reminding me of a movie: "Road House". I'm beginning to have regrets about moving here – it's not the small-town atmosphere I had envisioned! Hoping things get better!!!!

Mr. I. Wilson (Scotty)
Didsbury

Generally disgusted with general delivery rules

An open letter to the minister

I am writing you today and providing a copy of my correspondence to MP Blake Richards regarding delivery of addressed mail, particularly to the Didsbury, Alberta post office.

I have recently experienced about the ninth instance where mail addressed to my street address or to General Delivery, Didsbury has been summarily returned to sender. This practice is, (according to a Canada Post employee with whom I spoke), a Canada-wide policy. For background, we here in Didsbury are obligated to utilize General Delivery as an address for some months subsequent to moving into the community, due to a lack of numbered post boxes. (This was the subject of previous correspondence between former MP Myron Thompson and me).

When a post box becomes available, the number is assigned on a first-come, first-served basis. I was informed, when I finally was assigned a box number that only mail addressed to the P.O. box address would be delivered. Street addressed mail or General Delivery would be returned to the point of origin. I thought this quite strange at the time from a 'service delivery standard' perspective, but opted to wait and see. I have now had several items returned and have been greatly inconvenienced as a result. In this electronic age, most correspondence of a trivial nature goes via the internet. Important testamentary, financial and administrative documents are often handed over to Canada Post for delivery. Some businesses will not deliver to a post box, others will not allow for subscription to services without one.

The Canada Post person I spoke to said that there was no way for them to know, since we do not have household delivery, what box number would be associated with a street address in this little town. I suggest to you, sir, that our post office could easily maintain a list of addresses associated to names and that a cross reference might take seconds to execute. This would obviate the need for return expenses, multiple handlings and some pretty 'ticked off' clients/taxpayers.

I recall the days when postal services around the world were often the subject of general interest news reports for taking extraordinary efforts to deliver. Envelopes bearing telephone numbers, partial names, and otherwise considered undeliverable were finding their way to recipients due to the imaginative and tireless efforts of public servants from various jurisdictions. There were letters from grandchildren who could barely cipher that were delivered to grateful and moved grandparents. Pride and integrity of the mails was the driver of this level of service. (You get the picture.)

A little extra service effort would go a long way, I submit, and this policy, if indeed it is one is mind-numbingly ill conceived. Would you be so kind as to inject a little common sense, here, please?

Hitting the range with Tiger Woods

Teen meets his idol

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

It's not very often someone can say they had a chance to spend some time with their idol.

In Cole Robertson's case, he not only met his idol but also got a chance to spend some time on the driving range with him. His idol is Tiger Woods.

Robertson's mom, Jen Robertson bought raffle tickets to support Breast Cancer from Celebrities For Golf a few months back. In April, she was informed she had won a round trip to the Grand Cypress Resort in Orlando, Florida to take part in a golf clinic with Tiger Woods.

"I was able to gift it to someone so I gifted it to Cole," said his mom. "So what we won was airfare to Orlando and two nights' accommodations at Grand Cypress Resort. The day of the clinic all of our meals were paid. He had a round of golf, then he had an hour with the head pro at Grand Cypress and then there was an hour with Tiger Woods." She added she really hadn't expected to win.

The experience was one of a lifetime for the 15 year-old who plays on his high school golf team.

"I can't even put it into words," he said of meeting Woods last month. He added the time with Woods was spent on a driving range where they hit balls and Woods gave some advice and tips to other amateur players that were there for the clinic.

"He didn't really give me any advice or tips," Robertson said adding being there with Woods was still an unreal experience. His mom added at one point Woods asked to try Robertson's club. Robertson plays left-handed, and when Woods started out he played left-handed.

"He was just like 'give me that thing, let me see if I can still hit it'...", she said.

Although Robertson may not have gotten any direct tips or advice from Woods himself, Woods talked about how he didn't practise crazy amounts of hours a day - as he found practising that much harmed his game. Rather, Woods

"He was really nice and down to earth. He was humble."

practises short periods of time a few times a day.

"That was some good information that Cole got as well as the mental side, like how to keep your focus and how to always have a target," said Robertson's mom.

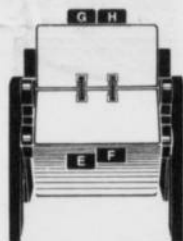

"He was really nice and down to earth," said Robertson of his idol. "He was humble."

Robertson said the experience was just "not real" and believes there was nothing really that could top it. "Oh I don't know, winning the lottery maybe, but not really."

Overwater lands $18,000 field hockey scholarship

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

Besides graduation, Chelsea Overwater has something even more exciting to look forward to.

The 17-year-old DHS student will be attending Missouri State University in the fall on a full scholarship, worth about $18,000, for field hockey.

"I just decided two weeks ago," she said adding she had a choice between Limestone College in Gaffney, South Carolina, McDaniel College in Baltimore, Maryland and Missouri State in Springfield, Missouri.

Overwater went with Missouri because she liked the business courses they had to offer but more importantly because they were a Division One when it comes to field hockey.

Overwater plans to study international business with a minor in marketing and advertising.

"I want to travel the world and get paid for it," she laughs.

Known for being an athlete, Overwater played ice hockey for 11 years and played on the DHS basketball and volleyball teams. Her start in field hockey began when the high school coach, Jenny Johnson, approached her when she was in Grade 9 and asked her to play field hockey.

"I started in Grade 9 - the coach was Jenny Johnson and I had never even heard of field hockey and she just came up to me in the hallway asking if I wanted to go to California for a tournament," Overwater laughs. "She had heard I was an athlete." After the first taste of the sport, Overwater was hooked because it reminded her so much of hockey.

Coach Jenny Johnson was happy to hear of Overwater's scholarship and boasted about her athletic abilities. "She played for me for three years and she has always been one of my stronger athletes and not just a strong athlete but has strong communications skills," said Johnson, calling Overwater the complete package for any coach.

From there, Overwater went on to play on the provincial outdoor field hockey team in Grade 10 and the provincial indoor team in her final two years of high school. She got another chance to head to California for the California Cup where her team placed 5th overall out of 25 teams. The team was put together of Didsbury and Calgary players because there were not enough players interested for a team at her school at the time.

Currently, Overwater is playing on a club team a couple of times a week. She is busy not only planning her move to the States but also a mission trip to Jamaica in July with Youth for Christ where she will participate in youth rallies and help repair churches for two weeks.

In the meantime, Missouri State field hockey head coach Dawn Callahan can't wait for Overwater to start with the team.

"I'm really excited about Chelsea, she's got really good size, she's going to have a great reach and it's going to help us tremendously on defence," Callahan said the team would start off with about a week of pre-season training where the team would be practising two or three times a day. Depending on what happens in pre-season, Callahan expects Overwater will have a really good chance of having a positive impact on defence for the team.

"I think she's going to have a great four years with Missouri State."

Overwater admits along with being excited about moving and living on campus, she is also really nervous.

"I come from a town where (I) know everyone and going to where I know no one."

In the end, though, she says she looks forward to a new start and meeting the new people.

As Overwater embarks on this new chapter in her life, Johnson has a little bit of advice for her former player.

"Be open-minded and bring all that she has to the team and to focus on her strengths - she's going to do just fine and excel and just remember the best way to learn is to make mistakes."

Ride for Dad coming

On Saturday, June 27, Parkland Agri Services Corp. will again be the proud presenting sponsor of the Rural Alberta Motorcycle Ride for Dad, benefiting Prostate Cancer education and research in Alberta.

This is the second running of the Rural Alberta chapter of the nationwide Motorcycle Ride for Dad charitable fundraiser. It is the only chapter that is organized for, and runs exclusively through, rural communities. The 2008 ride, which attracted over $40,000 in sponsorship and involved 46 riders, contributed over $84,000 for prostate cancer and research in Alberta.

This year's ride is expected to attract approximately 150 riders, weather permitting, and raise $100,000 for the cause.

As in 2008, the 2009 ride will again include three separate routes - Didsbury, High River and Stettler - that all culminate with a barbecue on main street in Didsbury. The barbecue opens to the public at noon, and features a 3 p.m. jazz performance by The Polyjesters, who will welcome the riders before moving the show over to JD's Restaurant Pub & Grill at 4 p.m.

"Our organization last year was completed in just two months, and as a result we had limited time and opportunity to recruit riders from within the community," explains Tony Overwater, Parkland Agri Services CEO. "This year, we're going to a whole other level with the support of our sustaining sponsors - Agrium, Syngenta, Bayer CropScience, Monsanto, Dow AgroSciences, DuPont, NuFarm, and Alberta Treasury Branches - and our newest sponsors NutriAg and Nufarm. Our farm customers have a unique opportunity this year to leverage matching funds from suppliers through purchases of 'Ride for Dad Friendly' products and services and a personal donation to the cause. This program runs until the end of August."

Also helping to kick the event into high gear at the community level are Mark's and Wal-Mart stores, which are selling pinups through June and July to support the ride. Several fundraising barbecues in Red Deer and Olds were recently held by Mark's in coordination with select Wal-Marts, Tony Romas and M&M Meat Shops. Generous publicity has been provided by FM radio sponsors Big 105 and 106.7 The Drive out of Red Deer, Rock 104.5 and 95.5 CKFM out of Olds, and Sun Country 99.7 and the Eagle 100.9 of High River and Okotoks, respectively. Donations of food and merchandise have been generously donated by several local shops and bike stores for rider prizes and for auction at the barbecue.

"Our ultimate goal is twofold," explains an enthusiastic Jordan Overwater, chair of the 2009 Ride Committee, "to get men to be proactive in the prevention of prostate cancer, which will affect one in five in their lifetimes; and, secondly, to raise money for some portable PSA testing units that we hope will make diagnosis more accessible to men outside of Edmonton and Calgary."

What you need to know about

improved electricity transmission in Alberta

It is time to upgrade Alberta's electricity transmission system. The current system cannot meet the needs of our growing province and the demands for more electricity in our homes and where we work.

Under proposed legislation, the Government of Alberta will identify which transmission projects are needed to deliver the power that Albertans rely on every day.

Albertans will continue to have a say on where transmission lines are located. This will not change. Landowner issues will be heard, will be taken into account, and affected landowners will receive fair compensation.

This is part of our commitment to ensuring Albertans receive reliable electricity service today and during the years to come. To learn more about our electricity system and the provincial plan to keep the lights on in Alberta, visit www.energy.alberta.ca.

CLARKE
Edna Virginia
(née Alford)
1920 - 2009

Mum died peacefully June 18th after a long life dedicated to her family, her community, her church, and her profession.

The third of seven children, she was raised in Oakville, Manitoba, graduated from the University of Manitoba, taught high school in Gimli, joined the newly formed Home Economics Division of Alberta Agriculture in 1943. Home Economist at Red Deer, instructed at the Olds School of Agriculture, married Thomas Clarke, started their family, later Home Economist at Olds, served on the Olds Town Council, served St. John's Anglican Church, later worked for Alberta Agriculture and conducted family-living programs across Alberta, and later served on the first Board of Governors of the Olds College.

Left with the memories are her children, Brian (Barbara) and Andrew (Rita), and grandchildren, Thomas, Anna (Derek), Cameron, and Shannon, and youngest brother, Arthur (Marie), in-laws, nieces and nephews, and the many people she worked with, spoke to, and influenced over her long life. A memorial service will be held Saturday July 4, 2009 at 1:00 p.m. at St. John's Anglican Church, Olds with Reverend Inez Hannett officiating. In lieu of flowers, memorial tributes may be made directly to the Salvation Army. Heartland Funeral Services Ltd, Olds entrusted with arrangements. 403-507-8610. www.heartlandfuneralservices.com

"What would I do if I had to pay for a funeral right now?"

If you called us, you'd be pleasantly surprised. With all of the options we offer, what you thought of as out of reach suddenly becomes realistic. If you're interested in prearrangement, the possibilities are even broader. Call us, we'll answer your questions.

110. In Memoriam

In loving memory of
Alex Hunter
who passed away June 26, 2006

Deep in my heart a memory is kept,
Of the one I loved so dearly and never will forget.
But looking back with memories upon the path we trod,
I bless the years I shared with you,
And leave the rest to God.
You have not really left me,
Nor have you travelled far,
Just stepped inside God's lovely house,
And left the door ajar.

Always in my heart, your loving wife Cathie.

In loving memory of
M. Joyce Pratt
who passed away June 28, 1984

So many memories we still recall,
Your love and courage still stands tall.
25 years have gone by since you passed away,
You're still with us each and every day.

Always remembered by Doug, Angela & Family;
Karen, Les & Family;
Gerry, Paul & Family

In loving memory of
Alex Hunter
who passed away June 26, 2006

June comes with great regret,
A month that we will never forget.
We hold our tears when we speak your name,
But the ache in our hearts remains the same.
May the winds of love blow gently,
And whisper so you can hear,
That we still love and miss you,
An wish that you were here.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Grant, Lorraine & Family
